Hello Monique

I fully support the proposed new bylaw, will be seen as very positive to see the Rotherham site closed. It would however still be prudent to encourage the use of proper campgrounds as tourism is still our biggest income it would be nice if the smaller businesses still benefited from patronage. Also policing by way of wardens is a great idea, and perhaps the fines imposed should be used to finance this so that it does not impact too heavily on tax payers. Maybe a system of linking to number plates so that fines are collected upon return of hired vehicle, or if private vehicles are used a points penalty system on licences for those not paying! I also think that organised events maybe should still be looked at on an individual basis, as these are often one off collective groups raising money for good deeds.

We live directly opposite the Rotherham Freedom site and my husband would be more than happy to work with the council in a warden capacity, within the Rotherham village.

Kind Regards
